An Inspector Recalls: Memoirs of a Railway Detective Graham Satchwell

Now in his sixties, a former international executive with Microsoft Corporation and GlaxoSmithKline, Graham Satchwell looks back on his time as a Transport Policeman across an impressive career. The book follows his progress from the time, in 1968, when, aged 18, as an unqualified labourer, he cheated to pass the police entrance exam. With extensive use of anecdotes, his promotions to every rank within the CID are described with wit and brutal honesty. He became a sergeant at 21, an instructor at 24 and detective sergeant at 27. The account ends, after 31 years, at the end of the last century, when as a lawyer and Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts, he was actually refused permission to retire from the Force. Dollops of humour, painful truth and a vivid description of the macho policing culture of the time.
