Ashlyn Baptiste is falling. One moment she was nothing—no memories, no self—and then suddenly, she's plummeting through a sea of stars. Is she in a coma? She doesn't remember dying, and she has no memories of the life she left behind. All she knows is that she's trapped in a consciousness without a body and she's spending every moment watching a stranger.

Breckon Cody's on the edge. He's being ripped apart by grief so intense it literally hurts to breathe. On the surface, Breckon is trying to hold it together for his family and his girlfriend, but underneath he's barely hanging on.

Even though she didn't know him in life, Ashlyn sees Breckon's pain, and she's determined to find a way help him. As her own distressing memories emerge from the darkness, she struggles to communicate with the boy who can't see her, but whose life is suddenly intertwined with hers. In alternating voices of the main characters, My Beating Teenage Heart paints a devastatingly vivid picture of both the heartbreak and the promise of teenage life—a life Ashlyn would do anything to recover and Breckon seems desperate to destroy—and will appeal to fans of Sarah Dessen, John Green, and David Levithan.

Scott Smith:

As a university student exactly feel bored to help reading. If their teacher requested them to go to the library or to make summary for some book, they are complained. Just very little students that has reading's heart or real their leisure activity. They just do what the teacher want, like asked to go to the library. They go to generally there but nothing reading significantly. Any students feel that examining is not important, boring in addition to can't see colorful pics on there. Yeah, it is to become complicated. Book is very important to suit your needs. As we know that on this period, many ways to get whatever you want. Likewise word says, many ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this My Beating Teenage Heart can make you sense more interested to read.
