Cubism and Abstract Art (Paperbacks in Art History)

Alfred H. Barr Jr.

Cubism and Abstract Art (Paperbacks in Art History) Alfred H. Barr Jr.

Written by MoMA's first director, Alfred Barr, famous for his landmark exhibition Cubism and Abstract Art, in 1936. Barr was instrumental in promoting the art of established modernists like van Gogh, Gauguin, Matisse and Cézanne. Additionally, there was perhaps no greater champion in America for the work of Pablo Picasso. The book includes the famous diagram "Cubism and Abstract Art," that was first printed on the cover this highly influential book. The diagram has since been criticized for privileging Cubism as central to the evolution of Modern art, and sidelining other movements such as Abstract Expressionism, Surrealism and Dadaism.
